We are pleased to announce the industry's premier educational offering, The New England School for Financial Studies. Sessions will be held on the campus of Babson College from May 18-23, 2008 for the Class of 2009. Now is the time to ask whether one or more members of your staff could become more valuable employees as a result of a NESFS education.

Who is NESFS for?

The New England School for Financial Studies is for staff officers, branch managers, department heads, and other key personnel. NESFS has been recommended by the American Council on Education for 9 credits in an upper division baccalaureate degree. For those who already have this degree, three credits can be applied toward a graduate degree.

What will it teach your staff?

The School will provide the tools needed to manage and lead effectively in today's dramatically changing financial-services environment. A rigorous, challenging pace provides the depth of knowledge needed for a competitive advantage.

How can it help your bank?

Graduates of NESFS are better prepared to understand the challenges bank CEOs and senior management face daily. It broadens their knowledge of technology, banking and financial services and provides them with skills to make decisions that promote the profitability of your bank.

How to apply

Mail the enclosed application by April 4, 2008, along with a letter of recommendation from the bank's endorsing officer (CEO or applicant's supervisor). For additional information, review the enclosed brochure or call Kathleen E. Jones, senior vice president, Massachusetts Bankers Association.
